

Terri McKnight, CPA, director of the audit department at Gelman, Rosenberg & Freedman, CPAs, has published a short essay about how nonprofit associations can avoid fraud by implementing effective policies and controls. Other nonprofits can benefit by taking similar steps.

Ms. McKnight's essay will appear in a booklet of insights and advice for association leaders due to attend the American Society of Association Executives' Great Ideas Conference in March 2011.

To read her essay about how associations can avoid fraud, click here.